Hands-on workshop at the 2014 GNYDM
Why I Volunteer at the GNYDM

by MARK STEVENS, D.D.S., J.D.

The dictionary defines a volunteer as a person who performs a service willingly and without pay. Why do I volunteer at the Greater New York Dental Meeting (GNYDM)? In one word: knowledge.

There is no better environment in which to immerse oneself in current concepts, state-of-the-art dental technology and dental techniques than at the annual GNYDM. Whether attending a seminar or workshop during a volunteer assignment or networking with colleagues from around the world, the GNYDM offers a wealth of knowledge to those willing to participate. Nowhere is there such a concentrated mix of academia and clinicians willing to discuss and impart a lifetime of experience and expertise.

The opportunity to either reconnect with former associates or forge new business or professional alliances is not to be understated. The GNYDM is, after all, a trade show and educational forum. Throughout my years of volunteering I have befriended people I would not have met under normal circumstances and discovered new products or techniques I would not have utilized, were it not for volunteering and attending the Meeting.

Feeling informed and contemporary is a very pleasant sensation, so is feeling helpful. By volunteering at the GNYDM you are performing a much appreciated service for your chosen profession. You are being compensated by the wealth of knowledge at your fingertips. The GNYDM offers a wonderful lineup of tuition-free seminars and dozens of affordable workshops and special interest courses. Volunteering provides a win-win situation for everyone—a mutually beneficial pact that helps the profession and benefits the volunteer. When you leave the Meeting at the end of the day, it is with a good feeling that you have been helpful and enriched. And that is reward enough for me to keep volunteering every year at the GNYDM.

Volunteer and Make the GNYDM the Best It Can Be!

by NANCY MARIN-ROJAS, D.D.S.

The Greater New York Dental Meeting (GNYDM) rolls in once a year at the Jacob K. Javits Convention Center in Manhattan. This end-of-year event draws thousands of dentists and other dental professionals from all over the world to a city unlike any other—New York City. There is always excitement in the air as Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year’s approach and the GNYDM opens up the holiday season for me.

I have been volunteering at the GNYDM for over 10 years. I immerse myself in my assignments—translating for our Spanish-speaking visitors, serving as an aid at the lectures and directing visitors to the registration area or to the classes in which they are participating. I enjoy hearing from some of the most distinguished professionals who speak. I love the diverse topics that are offered. I have learned that there is so much we can offer our patients and while taking part in the lectures, I am able to hone in on specific interests.

I enjoy walking the many aisles of the exhibit floor and playing with new gadgets. I like to take advantage of the special offers from the numerous vendors and use my Section 179 write-off allowance for the year. My staff look forward every year to their bags of goodies, partaking in the raffles at the different booths and learning little pearls of wisdom which they can use back in the office.

My children have spent hours at the Sunday carnival/children’s program, which is specially designed to keep them entertained for hours and my husband enjoys being called “doctor” for the day.

Why do I volunteer? As a member of the New York County Dental Society which, along with Second District Dental Society (SDDS), is a co-sponsor of the meeting, I feel the need to represent my Society. I also look forward to the camaraderie. I meet up with colleagues and old classmates whom I haven’t seen all year. We catch up in an informal setting, yet we all know we are there on a mission: to make the GNYDM the best it can be.

Volunteer, Learn and See it All at the GNYDM

by FRANCIS S. ENG, D.D.S.

As a volunteer at the Greater New York Dental Meeting (GNYDM) and a volunteer for several decades, I am appreciative of the hard work and dedication of my colleagues to also volunteer for a very rewarding experience.

With the anticipated 50,000 visitors this year, the volunteers will welcome registrants with ambassador-like greetings, respect and information about the Meeting and New York City. What brings the innovative technology to the meeting floor are the thousands of exhibitors from around the world. The representatives of these companies are friendly, eager to listen and supportive of the dental industry.

Topics every year have continued to progress toward inclusive seminars in the specialty areas of dentistry. The International Oral Cancer Symposium, World Implant Expo, and Global Orthodontic Conference are being looked upon with great expectation.

It is my wish that all registrants continue to quench their thirst for education beyond the classroom or practice. There is so much to learn and see!
Thank You to Our GNYDM Volunteers!

Second District Dental Society (SDDS) would like to thank our members for volunteering to help run the greatest dental meeting in America, the Greater New York Dental Meeting (GNYDM)! We are publishing the names of this year’s volunteers to show our gratitude for all of their much needed and appreciated efforts. There is still time to volunteer for the 2015 GNYDM. Please contact the GNYDM at (212) 398-6922 and be prepared for a very rewarding experience. The funds received from the GNYDM are an integral part of the finances needed to run the SDDS and our many wonderful programs. Thank you!

Many dentists at some point in their careers think about volunteering. There are a multitude of options and the work environment can range from your cozy office, through programs like Donated Dental Services and Dentistry from the Heart, to going up the Amazon in a motorized dugout via Remote Area Medical Volunteers Canada. High-end trips can be an adventure—working in Kenyan villages for a week, then hiking Kilimanjaro with porters the next week. A trip to Punta Cana is free for you and your spouse if you work with needy Dominican kids for a few mornings. Mission trips like these can be a great way to give back while getting out of the same office routine. I work with Remote Area Medical (RAM), which serves needy populations here in the US, a short flight away from my practice in Brooklyn.

Several years ago, I started looking for a non-evangelical dental organization and I came across RAM. Founded by Stan Brock, a native of British Guyana and former stunt man for the television show, “Mutual of Omaha’s Wild Kingdom,” RAM organizes regular weekend mobile dental and optical clinics, serving tens of thousands of patients in rural Appalachia.

On my first trip to Knoxville, I decided to visit headquarters. Operations were conducted from a converted school. Dental equipment in need of repair filled the third floor, secretarial was on the second floor and Stan kept airplane large parts in his living space on the ground floor. Stan might live in Knoxville, but he has had cold water showers outside the school for the last 20 years, because he wants to make sure that 95 percent of RAM donations go to patient care and not a top-heavy bureaucratic body. The organization consists of retired interstate truckers (to haul dental/optical equipment), dentists, RAM airborne (to fly or jump out of airplanes) and a corps of unbelievably enthusiastic volunteer support personnel.

In 2008, RAM held 12 dental clinics; in 2015, it had 30. After CBS’ “60 Minutes” did a segment on RAM, donations flowed and we received ample supplies and new equipment. What did not flow was an influx of dentists to staff the expanded clinic schedule.

In order for RAM to operate efficiently, it runs as a quasi-military unit. Each clinic can take up to six hours to set up. Some weekends, several hundred patients will be seen but other times, thousands of patients will be seen in a two- or three-day event. Friday afternoon at a local high school gym, the RAM trucks will show up. Dozens of volunteers will assemble dental chairs, sterilization areas, compressors and HVAC lines, with guidance from section chiefs who know how things work. RAM has set up clinics in a NASCAR speedway (we worked in the mechanics pit, which I though was appropriate) and a barn at a horse track, as well as in schools and colleges. We have air conditioning at most venues but heating can be a problem while working outdoors in a chilly Appalachian spring.

Patients begins arriving at 6 p.m. the evening before a clinic to ensure a ticket, which is how patients access treatment. The number of tickets given out is proportional to the number of clinicians expected to show up. Some patients end up waiting 48 hours for treatment; many more never get a ticket. It’s a long night for the patients.

By having patients line up for treatment, a self-selection process occurs: the most desperate patients line up early on Friday afternoon to be sure they’ll be treated. Many patients sleep in their cars, waiting for dawn. Security is provided by the Tennessee National Guard.
Patients are screened by a small army of registered nurses and emergency medical technicians starting at 5 a.m. on Saturday. Limited medications are available to stabilize diabetics who have not eaten in too many hours, or for hypertensive individuals who need to be better stabilized. Dental triage follows at 6 a.m. All focus is on getting rid of pain.

Clinical treatment choices are limited to restoration or extraction using visual inspection and a patient’s dental history as a guide. Limited radiographs are taken with a Nomad portable unit. The dental staff is usually a mix of students from a hygiene or dentistry program, some local dentists and a handful of volunteers from other states. All equipment and supplies are provided by RAM. I frequently cannot remember how many patients I see in a day, but I count my carpules and when I hit 100, it’s time to call it quits.

In some clinics, over 90 percent of the patients request extractions. Many patients in their thirties believe that full dentures are the only way to be free of the unrelenting discomfort of dental caries. Denturists abound outside of major metropolitan cities. Patients might be able to afford a set of economy dentures, but not the oral surgery that is first needed. Many patients require multiple procedures to achieve dental stability. There is no way you can help everybody, but you can help a few dozen people for the rest of their lives.

Of the five states which currently allow volunteer dental licenses, Tennessee is the first. Additional malpractice coverage is not needed. How is it that the Appalachian population is so underserved in the area of dental care? The level of unmet need (27 percent of the population) can be overwhelming. NYC has 78 dentists per 100,000 population. Some counties in Tennessee have less than half that, at 36 dentists per 100,000. Lifestyle choices such as tobacco usage play a part; lack of fluoridation, in conjunction with the consumption of large quantities of sugar-laden beverages, is an especially destructive combination. A fluoridated community will proudly display a highway marker to herald its progressive nature. The majority of patients treated are hard-working, uninsured citizens. Since the Affordable Care Act does not cover dentistry and Medicaid coverage ends age 18, there is no safety net for the poor of this area.

You are the only dentist these patients will see for many years. It can be an emotional experience for both patient and provider. We see patients from 6 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday and 6 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Sunday, early enough to catch a flight back to LaGuardia. Food is provided for volunteers through local sponsoring groups. Evening entertainment is a piece of Americana; it could be bluegrass music or a demolition derby in an abandoned pit mine. The Tennessee Valley Authority has some beautiful 30-mile long lakes. Though RAM has great funding, what is frequently missing is boots on the ground. Most clinics turn away hundreds of patients due to the lack of skilled dentists. Please consider spending a weekend working in the Smoky Mountains.

More information on Remote Area Medical can be found on its website at ramusa.org, including some interesting video archives. If you have any questions, feel free to contact me at tkayak@aol.com.

Dr. Nathaniel Sasson is an SDDS member who has been volunteering with Remote Area Medical since 2008. To view a brief video of Dr. Sasson discussing his RAM volunteer experience, visit http://bit.ly/1jojGqO.

Surgical Protocol for Successful Implant Prosthetics

Featured Clinician: SOL D. HABER, D.D.S.
Former Director, Dental Implant Division, Long Island College Hospital

This lecture will provide attendees with a pre-prosthetic checklist of key factors to consider when evaluating a patient for implants. The checklist includes:

- Medical history
- Anatomic considerations
- Possible staging of extractions
- Transitional appliances
- Soft and hard tissue considerations (quantity and quality)
- Smile evaluation

A team approach to satisfying the prosthetic demands of the individual case utilizing surgical planning will be outlined. Upon successful completion of the lecture, attendees will learn to critically evaluate prospective dental implant candidates to ensure better aesthetic and functional outcomes.

Innovations in Modern Esthetic Dentistry

Featured Clinician: K. MICHAEL GHALILI, D.D.S., M.S.D.
Clinical Professor, Department of Prosthodontics, New York University College of Dentistry

This course will demonstrate the philosophies, techniques and theories necessary to implement esthetic dentistry into your dental practice. Porcelain laminate veneers can be used to make dramatic changes in tooth size, shape and color, and to correct esthetic imperfections. The goals and objectives of porcelain laminate veneers as a treatment modality will be discussed and evaluated at length, including the discussion of preparations, temporization, cementation and smile design.

Using video and extensive before and after photos, participants will see a comparison of simple and advanced cases and learn the techniques used in each case. The latest in cutting edge materials and technology will be reviewed. Participants will learn how porcelain laminate veneers can be used to:

- Close extensive diastemas
- Straighten teeth
- Correct minor malocclusion, cross-bites, class-three, tetracycline stains and short tooth syndromes
- Correct other functional concerns

Upon successful completion of this course, participants will have an in-depth grasp of the importance of laminates in innovative dentistry and the opportunities to grow their practices using this practical and esthetic option.
Implants, Attachments and Clinical Variants Affecting Treatment Planning

Essayist: GEORGE E. BAMBARA, D.M.D., M.S.
Faculty, Rutgers School of Medicine

Implants are often mistakenly treatment planned as crowns or bridges on natural abutments. Successful planning must start with a restorative plan that includes implant placement and continue through the final stages of prosthetic design. By redirecting occlusal forces using dental attachments as well as recognizing clinical variants in case design, success, longevity and patient satisfaction can be ensured.

Upon successful completion of the lecture attendees will:

- Have a greater understanding of treatment planning using dental attachments
- Understand how clinical variants can influence treatment planning objectives
- Create restorative plans that ensure successful outcomes

Contemporary TMJ Surgery

Featured Clinician: ALEX MENESHIAN, D.D.S., M.D.
Attending, Long Island Jewish Medical Center

This course will be a review of the diagnosis and treatment of temporomandibular joint (TMJ) disorders. It will focus on how and why contemporary surgical procedures have significantly improved the outcome for TMJ patients. The following will be reviewed:

- Review of anatomy and physiology of TMJ
- Pathogenesis of TMJ disease
- Clinical and radiologic diagnoses
- Nonsurgical treatments
- Historically failed surgical options
- Contemporary surgical options

Upon successful completion of this course, attendees will learn how to diagnose different types of TMJ disorders as well as ascertain a variety of treatment options.
