Dr. Howard Lieb Named SDDS Distinguished Service Award Recipient

by BERNARD HACKETT, SDDS EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Dr. Howard I. A. Lieb is to be the newest recipient of Second District Dental Society’s Distinguished Service Award. This award is the Society’s most prestigious award and is periodically presented to a Second District member whose contributions to the Society and dentistry are truly outstanding. Created in 1977, it has been awarded on 12 previous occasions.

Dr. Lieb has held just about every elected position in the Society, moving up “the ladder” to its presidency in 1994. He continues to serve as a member of numerous committees at Second District including the Budget and Finance Committee. He is presently serving as the chair of the Publications Committee. He was the chairman of the District Liability Claims Committee from 1987 through 2011, a committee on which he still actively serves.

Dr. Lieb is a past general chairman of our own Greater New York Dental Meeting, having served in that role for the 2002 and 2003 meetings. He recently concluded his first year of a four-year term as one of 17 members of the American Dental Association’s Council on ADA Sessions. He also serves on the American Dental Association Foundation Subcommittees for Disaster Relief and Semi-Annual Grants, the latter of which he is the chair.

Dr. Lieb’s career in dentistry spans over four decades. As a general dentist, he has ably provided his professional services to the Staten Island community. His enthusiasm for the profession never seems to wane, demonstrating a never-ending desire to contribute wherever and whenever possible. He is an associate clinical professor at New York University College of Dentistry where he also serves as international project coordinator and special assistant to the dean. Prior to that, he had teaching affiliations with the Staten Island University Hospital and Tufts University School of Dental Medicine.

Dr. Lieb and his wife, Joyce, have been blessed with a talented and loving family. They have three daughters: Nicole, who is a paramedic at Staten Island University Hospital; Jocelyn, a dermatologist practicing in Ridgewood, N.J., and Jayne, a bariatric surgeon and critical care physician at Jacobi Hospital in the Bronx. They also have a son, Michael, a certified public accountant who is a senior manager with Ernst and Young in Baltimore. In addition, Dr. and Mrs. Lieb are the proud grandparents of two girls, Sarah and Rachel.

The Board of Trustees of the Second District Dental Society was enthusiastically unanimous in its selection of Dr. Lieb as the recipient of this award, the Society’s highest honor. He will be presented the award at the 2016 Installation of Officers luncheon, which will take place at the Yale Club on Sunday, January 10, 2016. Dr. Lieb now joins a very select group of individuals who have demonstrated the essence of organized dentistry’s ideals. The Society and profession owe him a debt of gratitude.

The Bulletin is the official publication of the Second District Dental Society. It is published monthly, except during June, July, August and September, when it is published bimonthly, by the Journal of the Second District Dental Society, Inc. The opinions expressed are those of the writers and are not necessarily those of the Second District Dental Society. Subscription rates: members, $4.50 per year; others, $5.50 per year. Material for publication must be typewritten and double-spaced and must be received within six weeks prior to the month of issue. Business communications and requests for advertising rates should be directed to the Second District Dental Society, 111 Fort Greene Place, Brooklyn, NY 11217. The Bulletin reserves the right to alter or reject any copy.

ADVERTISING POLICY

The SDDS Bulletin and Website welcome advertising as an important means of keeping the dentist informed about new and better products and services for the practice of dentistry. Such advertising must be factual, dignified, tasteful, and intended to provide useful product and service information. The publication of an advertisement is not to be construed as an endorsement or approval by the SDDS Bulletin and Website or its publisher, the Second District Dental Society, of the product or service being offered in the advertisement unless the advertisement specifically includes an authorized statement that such approval or endorsement has been granted. As a matter of policy, the SDDS Bulletin and Website will sell advertising space when the inclusion of advertising material does not interfere with the purpose of their publication. The SDDS Bulletin and Website reserve the right to accept or reject advertising, at its sole discretion, for any product or service submitted for publication.
It was over 40 years ago that then Second District Dental Society (SDDS) president, Dr. John Saladino, presided over the first SDDS general membership/scientific meeting ever to be held at the Fort Hamilton Officers Club in Brooklyn. That was the beginning of a mutually beneficial relationship between Second District and Fort Hamilton, one that has continued through December of this year.

It served initially as the home for four scientific meetings a year, plus the venue for the annual Installation of Officers ceremony. Later, SDDS gradually moved most, if not all, of its continuing education lectures to the same venue, taking advantage of its ample parking, dining services all in one facility and accessible location. Hundreds of courses and thousands of attendees later, the decision has been made to move on to a new venue.

Beginning January 2016, most of the continuing education courses and membership meetings that Second District traditionally held at Fort Hamilton Community Club will now be held at the Dyker Beach Golf Course in nearby Dyker Heights, Brooklyn. It is conveniently located on the corner of 86th Street and 7th Avenue. The venue is readily accessible to our members traveling in from Long Island, Staten Island, Manhattan and of course, Brooklyn. Parking is plentiful and our past experiences with their dining services have been terrific. This change will not impact our schedule of meetings and courses regularly held on Staten Island; those will continue to be held at the Hilton Garden Inn.

Reminders of the venue change will be sent with every CE registration confirmation. The venue change will be clearly noted in the 2016 Continuing Education Guide which all Second District members will soon receive.

Sometimes, change is for the better. This is not the first time that a venue change for the Society’s activities has been made, and we’re sure it won’t be the last. We are going to make every effort to make this transition as smooth as possible for everyone. We trust that our membership will be pleased.

With Distinguished Service

What type of dedication does it take to be a delegate from the Second District Dental Society (SDDS) to the American Dental Association (ADA)? A delegate first and foremost needs to be aware. This is accomplished by reading and studying volumes of reports on the national issues facing dentists throughout the United States. As the ADA annual meeting approaches, delegates are bombarded with daily e-mails directing them to information as it becomes available. They must be up-to-date on issues affecting their states and local components.

Next, delegates must meet with their local and state components’ delegations to further discuss issues. Finally, a trip is made to the meeting, which is held annually at the location of the ADA annual meeting. The number of days spent preparing for the meeting coupled with the actual five days spent at the meeting, is a huge commitment.

Dr. Howard Lieb, who will be the 2016 SDDS Distinguished Service Award recipient, has been a delegate or alternate delegate to the ADA for 14 years. At the last SDDS board of trustees meeting Dr. Lieb, who attended this year’s ADA meeting as a member of the American Dental Association’s Council on ADA Sessions, turned to me and said, “You know, Stuart, I’m going to miss going to the ADA this year as a delegate.”

He then went on to explain that over the years he has cultivated many friendships with delegates from other parts of the country. These friendships and acquaintances have helped the New York State Dental Association (NYSDA) and the SDDS forward their cause. I am personally thankful that our Society has people like Dr. Howard Lieb who, year after year, selflessly volunteer their time for the benefit of our members and all dentists.

Another SDDS member who was a delegate to the ADA for many years (15!) happens to be the first recipient of the SDDS Distinguished Service Award — Dr. Robert Leslie Heinze. This enormous honor was bestowed upon Dr. Heinze in 1977, in an amazing ceremony at the Fort Hamilton Officers Club in Brooklyn. I was a little intrigued by who exactly Dr. Robert L. Heinze was, so I asked our elder statesman, Dr. Anthony DiMango (93rd President of the SDDS), who immediately remembered Dr. Heinze as “a wonderful guy, distinguished and very strong for the dental Society.” Dr. DiMango also remembers Dr. Heinze as very active in the Greater New York Dental Meeting (GNYDM) and “a well-liked, fine gentleman.”

Dr. Robert L. Heinze was born on August 16, 1901 to Rudolph and Caroline Heinze. He graduated from the University of Pennsylvania dental school in 1923 and in 1982 received the university’s prestigious Alumni Award of Merit. During his days at the University of Pennsylvania, he was a member of the varsity lacrosse team. Dr. Heinze was also the society editor of the Penn Dental Journal, as well as a member of the Psi Omega and Psi Sigma Chi fraternities and the Darby Dental Society.

After completing dental school, Dr. Heinze returned to New York and lived for a while on Ocean Parkway in Brooklyn. In 1927, he married Edria Alice Fisk of West Collingswood, N.J. They had two sons, Robert Leslie Heinze, Jr. and Kenneth P. Heinze.

Dr. Heinze became the 63rd president of the SDDS in 1943. World War II was raging and on March 20, 1943 the Brooklyn Daily Eagle newspaper reported that Dr. Heinze urged SDDS members, then numbering over 2,000, to donate a pint of blood to the Red Cross during “dentists’ week,” which was to begin on April 5, 1943. He requested his dental colleagues supply “the plasma that saves lives of our fighting men.”

Dr. Heinze had many accomplishments; he was the 34th president of the New York Academy of Dentistry in 1962-1963 and was vice president of the American College of Dentists in 1971. He was known for serving nine years as a member of the New York State Board of Dental Examiners and a year as its chairman. Dr. Heinze was the dental director at Kings County Hospital and a member of the medical board. He served on NYSDA’s board of governors and was also an associate editor of the New York State Dental Journal (NYSDJ), for which he wrote diverse articles on topics such as the Code of Ethics and being a member of the State Board of Dentistry.

Dr. Heinze practiced dentistry in Brooklyn at the Williamsburgh Savings Bank Tower, located at 1 Hanson Place, for over 50 years. He lived in Rockville Centre, NY. He passed away on November 11, 1988. If any of our members remember Dr. Bob Heinze and would like to share anything about his contributions, please e-mail me at eperiodr@aol.com.

Using Clear Aligners
by JEFFREY M. GALLER, D.D.S.

The famous lecturer was proudly displaying his before and after photos of a very complex esthetic case. I was attending a lecture at the recent American Academy of Cosmetic Dentistry conference in San Francisco and was watching the screen in fascination as every single tooth in the patient’s mouth was being extensively restored with onlays, laminates and crowns.

I turned to the dentist sitting next to me and whispered, “Don’t you think this case would have been much simpler if he first did some orthodontic treatment?” My neighbor sneered, “Are you kidding? The patient would never agree to wear metal braces and wires, and clear aligners could never be successful here!”

I stared at him in surprise and considered my response. Should I try and explain that he was terribly misinformed and uneducated and didn’t know what he was talking about? That he should immediately sign up for courses in clear aligner therapy and get educated? That today, it is simply unethical to destroy massive amounts of healthy tooth structure instead of performing some relatively simple orthodontic repositioning?

I decided to simply hand him a copy of a recent issue of the Journal of the American Academy of Cosmetic Orthodontics.

I can only hope that for his sake, and for the future well-being of his patients, he reads that journal and realizes what he and his patients are missing.

Editor’s note: Dr. Jeffrey Galler is the editor of the Journal of the American Academy of Cosmetic Orthodontics, from which the above article was reprinted. On November 4, 2015, Dr. Galler received the 2015 Platinum Pencil Dental Journalism Award from the International College of Dentists. This honor is bestowed upon the editor of a publication which demonstrates outstanding, creative and effective use of graphics, illustrations and design. Dr. Galler received this award for the summer 2014 issue of the Journal of the American Academy of Cosmetic Orthodontics.
Case of the Month: An Interesting Diagnosis

by ABRAHAM ANCSELOVICS, D.D.S.

The patient presented to my office with a hard swelling and severe pain over the area of teeth #3, #4, and #5 which had started two years ago. Her chief complaint was a severe splitting headache going to the top of her head and behind her right ear. She had gone to an oral surgeon who saw nothing and recommended a neurological consult for a possible neuroma.

The neurologist recommended an MRI. The patient’s general dentist wisely referred her to my office with a few periapical X-rays (Figures 1 and 2) that had been taken within the past two months. Notice how there is no apparent pathology.

I proceeded to examine the patient but she was very fearful and would not let me touch the teeth. Her general dentist is also a dental anesthesiologist and the patient reported that due to her extreme anxiety, her dentist sedates her even for prophylactic cleaning. After visually inspecting the area I noticed a possible fracture line travelling mesial-distally. I recommended a cone beam computed tomography (CBCT) scan with a limited field of view of the right quadrant to see the extent of the fracture (Figure 3).

The diagnosis was a split tooth with a recommendation of extraction. Many times a fractured tooth is not visible and when the patient saw her oral surgeon, the tooth was most likely not fully separated. Microfractures are difficult to diagnose.

The patient had the extraction the next day under sedation and reported feeling much better. We also recommended cancelling her MRI appointment.

Dr. Ancselovics maintains a private practice limited to endodontics and microsurgery in Brooklyn. He can be reached at (718) 998-4747, ddsendo@gmail.com or www.brooklynrootcanal.com. We encourage readers to send their interesting cases to the editor at eperioddr@aol.com for possible publication.

Oral Health and Diabetes
Featured Clinician: STEVEN P. ENGBRETSON, D.M.D., M.S., M.S.
Associate Professor and Chair, Department of Periodontology and Implant Dentistry, New York University College of Dentistry

Type 2 diabetes is a major public health problem of global importance. Worldwide, about 347 million adults suffer from type 2 diabetes, corresponding to a global prevalence of about 10 percent in 2008. According to the World Health Organization, current prevalence may double by the year 2030 and diabetes-related healthcare expenditures range from 2.5 percent to 15 percent of annual health care budgets.

Chronic periodontitis (CP), a bacterial infection of the soft and hard tissues surrounding the teeth, is a major cause of tooth loss in adults. Nearly half of the U.S. population over the age of 30 is estimated to have CP, with 38 percent having moderate or advanced disease. Individuals with type 2 diabetes are at greater risk for incident and prevalent CP and have more severe CP than individuals without diabetes. Well-controlled diabetes is associated with less severe CP and a lower risk for disease progression, suggesting that level of glycemia is an important mediator of the relationship between diabetes and CP risk. There is also evidence from longitudinal cohort studies that prevalent CP is an independent predictor of incident diabetes and HbA1c worsening for individuals with diabetes.

Several biologically plausible mechanisms might explain the association between CP and DM. First, CP is a major cause of tooth loss, and patients with CP and tooth loss might experience reduced efficiency of mastication and potential dietary dysfunction that may influence glycemic control. Second, inflammatory markers such as tumor necrosis factor alpha (TNF), which have been implicated in the pathogenesis of insulin resistance, are elevated in patients with CP. Also, reductions in circulating TNF following CP treatment have been shown to be linked with metabolic improvements in subjects with type 2 diabetes and CP.

As increasing numbers of patients with diabetes become patients in our practices, an appreciation of their medical management and complex medical histories is important. Special consideration must be made with regard to insulin users, and working knowledge of the medications our patients with diabetes are taking is essential. Clinical decision-making in the dental office is dependent on an accurate medical history and basic working knowledge of diabetes and how it impacts the lives and health of dental patients with the disease. Questions regarding caries risk, periodontal disease management and whether to place dental implants are dependent on a basic understanding of the pathogenesis of diabetes-related oral health. Evidence-based decision making is critical to achieving optimal patient care results. Finally, there is increasing evidence that dentists may play a role in early screening for diabetes in the dental care setting. The implications of the expanding role of the dentist in this regard will be discussed.

Upon successful completion of this course, the attendee will learn:

1. Oral health and diabetes (clinical implications, oral findings, treatment of common oral disorders commonly found in the patient with diabetes)
2. The role of inflammation in the pathogenesis of periodontitis (associations with diabetes, obesity, and periodontitis; possible implications for therapeutic and lifestyle intervention)
3. The role of periodontal therapy in the patient with diabetes (review of current evidence and recommendations for treatment; does periodontal therapy improve glycemic control?)
4. The dentist as a member of the primary health care team (should dentists screen for diabetes in the dental office?)
5. Dental implants for the diabetic patient (implications for treatment decisions; management of medical emergencies in the dental office for patients with diabetes)
The first part of this presentation will review the critical esthetic parameters of the hard and soft tissues during oral reconstruction from both a periodontal and prosthodontic perspective. Special emphasis will be placed on the clinical steps used to develop esthetic analysis and smile design. Procedures used to both add and subtract gingival tissue will be discussed and a review of modern restorative materials that attempt to mimic the natural dentition will be presented. Finally, three clinical cases will be reviewed that will integrate the previously discussed topics. Upon successful completion of this lecture, attendees should:

- Be familiar with general esthetic principles of smile design
- Know when to add and subtract gingival tissues for appropriate function and esthetics
- Be comfortable with prescribing and handling modern restorative materials
- Understand the diagnostics and treatment planning behind esthetic reconstruction

The second part of this presentation will focus on dental attachments. Dental attachments provide unique options for gaining retention and stability for partial and complete removable dental prostheses. This presentation will provide an overview of commonly used attachment systems for both implants and teeth, as well as indications and contraindications for use. Special attention will be placed on treatment planning, maintenance and clinical/laboratory techniques to implement attachments successfully into one’s practice. Part of the presentation will deal with trouble shooting common problems seen with dental attachments. Finally, clinical cases will be presented that will show the successful integration of attachments in patients with partial and complete edentulism. Upon successful completion of this lecture, attendees should be able to:

- Understand the indications and contraindications for intracoronal and extracoronal attachment systems
- Treatment plan successful partial and complete implant overdentures
- Prescribe attachment systems based on individual patient’s needs
- Recognize how implants and teeth can be used in conjunction to stabilize, support and retain overdenture prostheses

Dentistry for children can at times be incredibly challenging but also amazingly rewarding. A “routine” procedure performed for an adult patient may become an adventure when performed on an anxious, crying and mobile pediatric patient. This adventure, however, should be enjoyable for both the patients and the dental professionals who treat them. This course is designed to provide guidance in the management of both the behavior of pediatric patients as well as the procedures they require.

The interactive lecture and discussion will combine a review of standard techniques with an update of new methods and advancements utilized in the treatment of pediatric patients. Participants will be shown step-by-step methods for routine and emergency treatment of children. This will be especially helpful for general practitioners looking for practical insights in to the management of young patients. The latest updates in clinical research will be evaluated as the practice of pediatric dentistry evolves into an evidence-based science. Upon successful completion of this course, attendees will learn:

- Non-pharmacologic and pharmacologic techniques of child management
- How to communicate with pediatric patients and their caregivers
- To diagnose and treat orofacial trauma in pediatric patients using current recommendations for splinting times and methods for traumatized teeth
- Current recommendations for the treatment of avulsed permanent teeth based upon extra-oral time and storage medium
- How to use systemic and topical fluorides for children
- The latest pulp therapy techniques for primary and young permanent teeth
- Current techniques and agents used for local anesthesia in children
- To diagnose and treat common emergencies in pediatric patients
